Crisis e inmigración (Spanish Edition) Francisco Javier Matia Portilla, Ignacio Álvarez Rodríguez, Joaquín Arango Vila-Belda

La crisis económica en la que nuestro país está inmerso ha atenuado la inmigración, ha fomentado la emigración de nuestros jóvenes y ha sembrado cierta preocupación ante el eventual surgimiento de movimientos xenófobos o racistas. Este libro es producto de una reflexión colectiva sobre la inmigración en tiempos de crisis, que tiene su origen en la intuición de que las soluciones que el Derecho puede aportar a este asunto deben tomar en consideración la naturaleza del fenómeno sociológico de la inmigración así como sus efectos económicos. Como el lector podrá comprobar, este volumen constituye una prueba palpable de que la hipótesis apuntada no es para nada errada. Los especialistas que publican aquí sus trabajos provienen de diversas especialidades (Sociología, Economía y Derecho) y de distintas Universidades (Complutense, Salamanca, Burgos y Valladolid), dotando a la investigación de una coherencia interna que ha de ser subrayada, y que sirve para delimitar las herramientas (semánticas, científicas y técnicas) que pueden y deben ser empleadas para mejorar la integración de los inmigrantes en nuestra sociedad.
