If you are trying to lose weight, Paderno Spiralizer can process fruits and vegetables into zero-fat, unsweetened beverages you can use as meal replacements

Paderno spiralizer makes preparing vegetables quick, easy, and fun plus a little different to slicing and dicing. There's also something very attractive about a pile of colourful vegetable spirals. Fruit and vegetable noodles can be used to make delicious raw salads, as a low carb pasta, noodle or rice replacement, in stir fries, soups, latkes, or pancakes. You can even make baked treats like sweet potato curly fries, onion rings, or crispy apple chips

Incorporating more vegetables (and fruits) in your daily meals is one of the best ways of creating healthier meals. These are organically low in fat, have little/no cholesterol, and contain small amounts of gluten from carbohydrates. When prepared correctly, many of these are incredibly tasty and are naturally rich in vitamins and minerals.

Many people believe that in order to preserve flavors and nutrients, vegetables and fruits should only be eaten raw, or boiled. Although this reasoning has merit, it severely limits meal options. Really, how many raw carrot and celery sticks can one person eat in a week? And how many boiled dishes can anyone stomach in a month? This may be considered healthy, but it's certainly unsustainable in the long run.

Veggies and fruits can be cooked and prepared in a million and one healthy ways. This book gives you 50 easy-to-follow recipes that add a twist (literally) to many vegetable and fruit-based dishes
